Reach important economies with more than 4 billion inhabitants in 6 languages.

In spite of globalisation, language still remains the greatest barrier. Actually, the technical progress of the last years could not change that. Even English does not always help. The solution for this problem is called Industryarea. Enterprises present here their industrial products in six economically important languages. For example: only a fraction of all German companies run their website in Chinese, although 40 % of the European exportations to China are coming from Germany.

With a few clicks to global player

At Industryarea, companies can place complete catalogues, data sheets, product images with description, videos, press releases and fair dates. Catalogues will be prepared that way enabling customers to have a quick look for products and scroll in them. Different to comparable supplier lists, every company can update their entries itself to keep them up-to-date.

Clear representation and easy handling

Today nearly all companies hold a web presence, often even multilingual. As every website appears differently, purchasers may often find it difficult to navigate there. Industryarea provides a standardized structure; therefore buyers of industrial products can search in their own language and get directly in contact by the request form.

Only relevant search results

Search engines are useless when looking specifically for providers. Many search terms have a double meaning which can mislead. Searching at Industryarea brings only relevant results. Contrary to common search engines with their contents covering too vast, Industryarea registers only suppliers and service providers of industrial products.

Your entry

Products and catalogues can easily be placed and without previous knowledge. Before publication, every entry will be checked to avoid mistakes and keep the high quality standard of search results. The entry appears on 6 domains in the corresponding language versions. Further languages will follow, from which you can also benefit in the future. Additionally your fair dates are published in 4 language versions on our fair portals www.tradefairdates.com, ... with company logo and fair stand.
